DETAILED ACTION

Oath/Declaration

The oath or declaration filed 01 February 2008 is accepted.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1, 2, 4, 6-10, 14, 43-47, 50 and 70-72 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Fishbane (5,122,145).

Fishbane discloses the claimed invention including an anchoring means, e.g. 30, 44, an alignment device, e.g. 18, 24, and a T-shaped guide component 12 (see, e.g., Figs. 2 and 3). The anchoring means comprises a pin and is oriented transversely to a long axis of a bone. The alignment means allows five degrees of freedom and is continuously adjustable. The guide comprises a stem portion and a pair of arms having lateral and medial holes or guide bushings therein. The holes are at least capable of being used as a drill guide. The center portion of the arms is capable of having clamped or attached thereto a navigation tracker. It is noted that the navigation tracker is not positively recited and a mounting location is equivalent structure to the recited means for attaching. Fishbane does not explicitly recite the use of cam locks.

However, it would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to have substituted cam locks for the adjustment and securing means of Fishbane, since this would have merely amounted to the substitution of functionally equivalent adjustment and securing mechanisms that are well-known in the art. It is noted that known cam locks would provide the advantage of facilitating adjusting and securing the moving parts of the device of Fishbane.

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments with respect to the claims as previously rejected have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.

Conclusion

The art cited on the accompanying PTO-892 evidences that cam locks and their advantages were well-known in the art at the time of the invention; as such, it would have been obvious to have substituted them for other adjustment and securing mechanisms, as set forth above in the rejection.

Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within

TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
